Players built these restaurants, tycoons and roleplay worlds with no involvement from the brand. Attention concentrates where quality is highest: the leading KFC tycoon holds a 97% rating with more than 600 players inside it at this snapshot. Demand for KFC in virtual worlds already exists. The open question is who serves it.

Virtual worlds, in one page

Virtual worlds are creator-led economies. Players build experiences, items and communities around the brands they love, with or without permission. Attention that brands used to buy on other channels now lives inside Roblox, Fortnite and their peers, and players pay it willingly. Brands are committing: activity is maturing from one-off experiments into always-on presence.
